Corner College's focal point is on four artist positions and their works selected for the exhibition. We see the selection as a collaboration of singular positions and as a collective work that forms ORLAN's body and expresses a transhumanist engagement in critical ecologies as a practice of the postanthropocentric feminist turn, which is a "materialist, secular, grounded and unsentimental response to the opportunistic transspecies commodification of Life that is the logic of advanced capitalism." We see the collection of art works in the socio-political and aesthetic desires of fourth-wave feminism.
